PRINTED AT THE SOUTHERN METHODIST PUBLISHING HOUSE,
1868.

THE UNIVERSITY OF NASHVILLE

WAS founded by the State of North Carolina, through Gen. James Robertson, in 1784. Tennessee was then a part of North Carolina, and whatever endowment the Institution enjoyed, it owed to the munificence of that State. The Medical Department was founded in 1850, by the late President, Philip Lindsley, who had devoted his life and great learning, since 1824, to the development and fame of the University. His agents and co-workers in founding the Department of Medicine were, John M. Watson, W. K. Bowling, A. H. Buchanan, Robert M. Porter, C. K. Winston, and J. Berrien Lindsley. The first announcement of the Medical Department went forth to the public with these six names alone, and colleagues afterward added owed their places exclusively to them, for, by an arrangement with the Trustees, all power bearing upon the department was ceded to them for a period of twenty-two years; for they believed, and their successors still believe, that medical men can manage their own affairs best when subject to no control of non-medical men, who, knowing nothing of medical matters, become tools in the hands of unscrupulous medical men for purposes of mischief.

In July, 1867, the Montgomery Bell Academy, an endowed Classical School, was organized within the University, and is already in a flourishing condition. The Scientific and Literary Departments, though temporarily suspended by civil troubles, are rooted in vigorous soil, and will again appear above the surface, possibly refreshed and energized by a period of repose.

This Institution has never been under the control or support of State or Church, while it has rendered valuable and acknowledged services to both. It reposes on a foundation that secures its perpetuity, and though mainly dependent upon tuition fees for its support, has never turned from the door of any department a studious and ambitious young man because he was poor, but has always welcomed him to its altars, and cherished his fame as a jewel among her possessions.

UNIVERSITY OF NASHVILLE.

Montgomery Bell Academy.

THIS branch of the University opened last year with newly and elegantly furnished School-rooms, a Campus of sixteen acres, a Library of 10,000 volumes, and an extensive Apparatus for scientific experiments, and a Gymnasium.

DEPARTMENTS.

The Academy has two Departments, viz., a Grammar School and a High School.

The GRAMMAR SCHOOL Course occupies three years.

The HIGH SCHOOL has two Courses, a Classical and an English. The Classical occupies four years, and will fit for Yale and Harvard. Pupils can enter other Colleges without taking our fourth year.

The English Course will fit for practical life.

Frequent written examinations will determine the grade of pupils.

CALENDAR.

The First Term commences on Monday, September 14, 1868. The Second Term on Monday, February —, 1869.

Scholars should be present at the beginning of the School-year, or at least at the beginning of each term, as new classes cannot be formed at other times. New pupils will be received and examined during the week commencing Monday, September 7.

TUITION.

Payable for each term in advance—in High School, $40 each term, or $80 per annum. In Grammar School, $30 each term, or $60 per annum.

BOARDING

May be obtained in the family of Professor Blackie, in the University buildings, and in private families throughout the city, at prices varying with the accommodations furnished. Pupils residing within six or seven miles of the University buildings can conveniently attend as day-scholars.

FACULTY.

J. B. LINDSLEY, M.D., D.D., Chancellor of the University, and Professor of Chemistry.

_____,* Principal of the Academy, and Professor of Mental and Moral Science.

M. S. SNOW, A.B., Principal of the High School, and Professor of Latin.

GEORGE S. BLACKIE, M.D., Professor of the Natural Sciences, and University Librarian.

F. N. JUDSON, A.B., Professor of Greek.

A. D. WHARTON, Ex. U. S. N., Professor of Mathematics, and Principal of the Grammar School.

For information respecting scholars on the Foundation, and other points, apply to members of the Faculty, or to

JOHN M. LEA,
President of the Board of Trustees.

* A gentleman widely known and honored throughout this region has accepted this appointment, but will not take the Chair this year.

NASHVILLE

JOURNAL OF MEDICINE AND SURGERY.

THE leading object of this Journal is to benefit the laborious country practitioner. To collect from all sources whatever in the judgment of the Editor will lighten the labors, and increase the success and usefulness of the great HIGH PRIVATES of the profession, and while by no means neglecting the science, its highest efforts will be devoted to the PRACTICE OF MEDICINE AND SURGERY.

As without observance of etiquette no social, scientific, or professional organization can exist, to promote harmony, respect, and confidence between practitioners, Medical Ethics will at all times claim a due share of attention. It will encourage organizations of Medical Societies, and enrich its pages with their proceedings. It will encourage the oft-neglected duty of recording Medical observations, and the Editor will publish with great pleasure, from any of his readers, facts and observations upon any branch of Medicine that he may deem valuable to all. He politely asks his readers to write for the pages of his Journal short articles of pith and point. This age is charged with a higher duty, in our progressive profession, than the reproduction of the notions and sayings of the dead Medical past. None now "has time, an hour's time, to sit upon a bank and hear the cymbal tinkle in white hands."

The Editor will have before him the leading journals of Germany, France, Great Britain, Italy, and Spain, with the no less valuable journals of his own country, and every thing useful to practitioners in them, in a condensed form, and in good English, shall grace the pages of his own.

Reviews and notices of foreign and American Medical books, as they appear, will form a valuable feature of the Journal.

No school of Medicine, or its politicians, no Medical clique or party, shall pretend to exert any influence whatever upon the course or character of this Journal. Clearly independent of these, and determined to keep so, the Editor and Proprietor looks alone to God, the profession, his paying subscribers, and himself, for sympathy and guidance.

It is well known to the American Medical profession, that this Journal, during the decade from 1851 to 1861, enjoyed a widely extended patronage. He who was its supreme guide then is still alone responsible for its management. That it contained the elements of usefulness then, its successful prosperity was sufficient evidence. Its present struggle will be to regain its former elevation by the same line of advancement, enlightened by the past.

Hereafter the Journal will be published in numbers of FORTY-EIGHT pages monthly, at three dollars a year, to be always paid in advance. Journal will always stop with the pay.
