COMMANDING HEIGHTS Video Series -- BACK BY POPULAR DEMAND

Based on the book "Commanding Heights: The Battle for the World Economy," by Daniel Yergin and Joseph Stanislaw, this 3-part, two-hour video series examines globalization, world trade and economic development, including the forces, values, events, and ideas that have shaped the present global economic system.

Episode Three: The New Rules of the Game
September 23, G-23, 5:30-7:30 pm followed by discussion, led by Professor Bart Victor (Owen Graduate School of Management)

(Since each episode is self-contained, you do not need to be present at all three to attain value from the presentation.)

Pizza and soda will be served. To reserve a spot, call the CTP Office at 343-5447 or register on the web at <http://www.vanderbilt.edu/moral_leadership/eventstu.htm>.

Divinity Library Database Open House
Wednesday, September 29
1-2 pm
Electronic Classroom

Now that the semester is underway, you may have started using one or more of the over 100 databases provided by the Divinity Library. Maybe you want guidance about which are the best databases to use for your research. Or maybe you missed the earlier training sessions, and have questions about how to use the ACORN catalog or the ATLA Religion Database.

The Divinity Library wants to assist you in effectively using our databases. We are going to be holding a Database Open House on Wednesday, September 29 from 1-2 pm in the Electronic Classroom. This is not a formal class, it is simply an opportunity for you to stop by and get answers to any questions you might have about ACORN, the ATLA Database, or any of the other databases available through the Divinity Library.

Join the Office of Women's Concerns on Monday, September 27th at noon in the Private Dining Room for a conversation with Carolyn Goddard of Magdalene House. The OWC will be doing a service project at Magdalene this year and for those who are unfamiliar with the program this discussion will be a great introduction. Bring your lunch--the OWC will provide cookies for dessert. We will also discuss the logistics of our involvement at Magdalene--how and when we would like to volunteer. If you are interested in this project and will not be able to attend the lunch time discussion, please email Annie Anne.m.Hardison@vanderbilt.edu or Kim Kim.crawford@vanderbilt.edu.

Fall Open House 2004

Vanderbilt University Divinity School is sponsoring a free informational workshop on Saturday, October 23, from 8:00 a.m.- 3:30 p.m. Current students, faculty, alumni/ae and staff will address the professional, academic, financial and personal aspects of pursuing a theological education. The school offers a Master of Theological Studies and a Master of Divinity degree; the women and men studying for those degrees come from thirty different religious and they include both first and second career students.

The Master of Divinity degree is a professional degree designed primarily for those persons interested in ordination. The Master of Theological Studies program is designed for persons interested in pursuing graduate study across the several theological disciplines in the Divinity School. This degree program may serve as a foundation for later doctoral studies in religion, for diaconal or ordained ministries in certain denominations, or as a vehicle for the enhancement of one's own religious faith and understanding.

Continental breakfast, lunch, and parking will be provided free of charge for those who pre-register. Call the Office of Admissions at 615 343-3963, email marian.o.berky@vanderbilt.edu, or access the online registration form at www.divinity.library.vanderbilt.edu/div/admissions/openhouse.html. You may also fax the Office of Admissions at 615 322-0691,
