The new Bluebird on the Mountain concert series begins at Vanderbilt Dyer Observatory on Saturday, May 14, the first of five shows this summer and fall offered by the observatory in collaboration with the Bluebird Café.

Songwriters Marshall Chapman, Danny Flowers and Tom Kimmel will trade songs in-the-round on the scenic observatory grounds overlooking Nashville starting at 7 p.m. Gates will open at 6 p.m.

Tickets are on sale now at Ticketmaster. Vanderbilt employees receive a discount by entering "vandytix" in the special offer code on Ticketmaster's Website. Tickets are available by the carload (limit eight people per car) or by single tickets. They may be purchased for each event or for the entire series. "When Vanderbilt employees purchase a season carload ticket, they may have seven of their closest friends join them for each of the five concerts for less than $6 per person per show," said Rick Chappell, director of Dyer Observatory. "Where else can you see top-notch musical talent for that price?"

Visitors are encouraged to pack a picnic and bring blankets and lawn chairs for comfort.

Tickets are limited and may run out before the day of the show. The concerts will be held rain or shine, and each concert ends with an invitation to stargaze using the observatory's Seyfert telescope.

The schedule for the rest of the Bluebird on the Mountain season:

- 8 p.m. Saturday, June 18: Tricia Walker, Ashley Cleveland, Karen Staley
- 8 p.m. Saturday, July 16: Rivers Rutherford and friends
- 8 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 13: Thom Schuyler, Fred Knobloch, Don Schlitz

· 7 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 17: Victoria Shaw, Gary Burr, Jim Photoglo
