Biographical Note

Born in Tennessee on April 3, 1943, James D. Squires rose from mill worker's son to editor and executive vice president of one of the country's most influential newspapers, the Chicago Tribune. Squires is the grandson of Dave White, a member of Garner Robinson's "Old Hickory Gang" of freewheeling Nashville politicians in the mid-twentieth century, about whom Squires wrote The Secrets of the Hopewell Box in 1996. A 1966 Peabody College graduate, Squires began his journalism career at the Tennessean in 1962, where he worked as a reporter, Washington correspondent and night city desk editor before moving to the Tribune in 1972. The 1970-71 Harvard Nieman Foundation for Journalism fellow worked in the Washington bureau until 1977, becoming the bureau chief in 1974. While at the Tribune, Squires covered Watergate, presidential elections and accompanied former President Gerald Ford on a 1975 state visit to China.

Squires moved from the Tribune to Tribune Company's Orlando Sentinel-Star (later the Orlando Sentinel) in 1977, where he was editor until returning to Chicago as editor of the Tribune in 1981. Eight-and-a-half years and seven Pulitzers for the Tribune later, Squires resigned. He and his wife Mary Anne moved to a horse farm in Kentucky, where he bred 2001 Kentucky Derby winner Monarchos. He was an adjunct professor at Harvard University in 1990 and Middle Tennessee State University in 1992. Squires was Ross Perot's media adviser in 1992.

He has written three books, contributed to one and edited another. Squires has two adult children.

Books:

A Search for Justice with John Seigenthaler (1971)

The American Millstone (edited) by Chicago Tribune staff (1986)

Read All About It! The Corporate Takeover of America's Newspapers (1993)

The Secrets of the Hopewell Box: Stolen Elections, Southern Politics, and a City's Coming of Age (1996)

Horse of a Different Color: A Tale of Breeding Geniuses, Dominant Females, and the Fastest Derby Winner Since Secretariat (2002)

Scope and Content Note

The collection contains six series, encompassing James Squires' careers as a journalist and editor, political adviser, author and university professor, and was donated to Vanderbilt University by Squires in 2005.

The materials in the collection include correspondence, newspaper clippings, photographs, videocassettes, audiocassettes and signed original political cartoons. Several books, including copies of Squires' published works, were part of the original collection but have been removed and shelved with the Sevier and Southern Civilization collections. Roughly half the journalism correspondence is made up of letters to the editor. These are arranged chronologically rather than alphabetically because of the topical nature of the letters. Additionally, many newspaper articles and faxes have been photocopied for preservation; the originals are located at the end of the appropriate series or subseries and are arranged chronologically. Any photographs included with correspondence have also been photocopied and the originals placed with the other photographs in each series or subseries.

The 63 boxes of the collection have been arranged in the following six series: journalism career, Ross Perot campaign, books, university courses, biographical material with miscellaneous correspondence and writings, and multimedia and oversized material.

Series Descriptions

Series I: Journalism career (1962-1989)

This 21-box series contains four subseries, arranged chronologically:

Nashville Tennessean (1962-1972)

This 2-box subseries contains one folder of correspondence and four folders of notes and notebooks, including notes on prominent figures and the Democratic presidential primaries of 1972. There are clippings of Squires' stories from 1963 to 1972, clippings of stories by other reporters and wire (Associated Press and United Press International) stories. Topics include prison reform, gambling in Tennessee and politics.

Chicago Tribune – Washington, D.C. (1972-1977)

This 4-box subseries contains eight folders of correspondence and eight folders of notes and notebooks, several of which are from the Republican National Convention of 1976. There are byline files containing clippings of Squires' stories from 1972 to 1977, clippings of stories by other reporters, carbon copies of stories submitted via Telex, and carbon copies of wire (Associated Press and United Press International) stories. Interesting topics included in this subseries are Squires' 1975 trip to China as part of the press corps accompanying former President Gerald Ford and the Republican National Convention of 1976. Also of interest are the notes and stories about the Watergate scandal and Admiral Thomas Moorer's White House spy operation (the "Moorer-Radford spy ring") conducted in December 1971, a story Squires broke in 1974.

Orlando Sentinel (1977-1981)

This 3-box subseries contains two boxes of correspondence. Roughly half the correspondence is made up of letters to the editor. The rest of the series contains press releases, Squires entire byline file for 1977-1981, clippings and publications.

Correspondents of note include former presidents Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan.

Chicago Tribune – Chicago (1981-1989)

This subseries is the largest in the collection at 13 boxes and contains four boxes of incoming correspondence, two of letters to the editor, one-and-a-half of outgoing correspondence and half a box of phone messages. Also included are newspaper clippings and various publications. Events of interest are the Tribune's endorsement of Harold Washington for Chicago mayor in 1983, material from Squires' 1984 trip to the former Soviet Union as part of an American Society of Newspaper Editors delegation, the "American Millstone" series about Chicago's North Lawndale neighborhood published in 1985, the printers' union strike in 1985-1986, and material documenting Squires' struggle against the corporate ethos of Tribune management in the late 1980s. Also of interest are the lengthy battle between the Tribune and the Chicago Sun-Times, culminating in Rupert Murdoch's purchase of the Sun-Times and columnist Mike Royko's defection to the Tribune. Correspondents of note include former presidents Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan and George H.W. Bush, advice columnists Eppie Lederer (Ann Landers) and her sister Abigail Van Buren, former U.S. Senator and Vice-President Al Gore, Jr. and his mother Pauline Gore, columnist Mike Royko, cartoonist Jeff MacNelly, authors Arthur Miller and Tom Wolfe, and newspapermen David Halberstam, Bill Kovach and John Seigenthaler. One book has been removed and shelved with the Southern Civilization collection.

Series II: Ross Perot presidential campaign – RESTRICTED (1992-1995)

This 9-box series is comprised of two boxes of correspondence, including phone messages. The undated outgoing correspondence is arranged by recipient, primarily members of the campaign team or Ross Perot. The campaign team includes Dallas attorney Tom Luce, political advisers Hamilton Jordan and Ed Rollins, and Perot's longtime business associate Morton Meyerson. There are two boxes of campaign materials, which contain staff information, agendas and strategy, issue papers, schedules, press releases, statements, speeches given by Perot and others, and interview transcripts. Also included is a notebook of quotes by Perot arranged by subject, transcripts of Perot's testimony before congressional committees, polls and surveys, subject files on the Nixon Project Papers and United We Stand America — a political organization started by Perot supporters — and newspaper clippings and publications. Two books have been removed and shelved with the Sevier and Southern Civilization collections.

Series III: Books ([1968]-2003)

This series contains 19 boxes in four subseries, arranged chronologically by publication date. The manuscript versions could not all be arranged chronologically because of insufficient information, but they are arranged in estimated chronological order.

The Search for Justice (1968-1972)

This 2-box subseries contains several manuscripts and partial manuscripts, notes, clippings and wire reports, correspondence and two photographs regarding Squires' contribution to former Tennessean editor John Seigenthaler's book. Squires covered the search for and trial of James Earl Ray, who in 1969 pled guilty to assassinating Martin Luther King the previous year.

Read All About It! ([1990]-1992)

This 5-box subseries contains several manuscripts, galleys, notes, correspondence, and newspaper clippings and publications. Notable correspondents include former Washington Post Executive Editor Benjamin Bradlee. Copies of the book, including a proof copy and a Spanish translation have been removed and shelved with the Southern Civilization collection.

The Secrets of the Hopewell Box ([1994]-1996)

This 4-box subseries contains several folders of notes, text of Squires' speeches, two-and-a-half boxes of articles and notes on the different people and events covered by the book, correspondence, draft peripheral copy for the book (index, dedication, etc.), and reproduced photographs from 1940s-1960s Nashville and the negatives. Tapes of interviews with several people, including Maude Robinson, Judge Maude Robinson, Gale Robinson and Jake Sheridan, Jr. have been placed in Series VI, along with 3 1/2-inch floppy diskettes containing the manuscript.

Horse of a Different Color (1995-2003; bulk 2001-2002)

This 8-box subseries contains several versions of the manuscript, some with editorial notes and corrections, as well as handwritten notes for the book. The correspondence is limited, but includes a note from playwright Sam Shephard. The majority of the series is made up of research material, mainly articles, arranged by subject. An audiotape version of the book read by Squires is in Series VI, and three copies of the book have been removed and shelved with the Southern Civilization collection.

Series IV: University courses (1990-1992)

This 3-box series contains material related to courses Squires taught at Harvard University in 1990 and Middle Tennessee State University in 1992. Correspondence is limited; the bulk of the collection is made up of articles, publications and unpublished papers Squires used for course development and readings. There are also lecture notes for several lectures and some student papers. Squires taught a course titled “Business, Technology, and the Free Press” at Harvard’s John F. Kennedy School of Government and two courses titled “Reviewing and Criticism” and “Seminar in Current Mass Media Issues – The Press and Democracy” at MTSU.

Series V: Biographical material, miscellaneous correspondence and writings (1955]-1972; 1990-2004)

This box contains several versions of Squires’ resumes and curriculum vitae as well as Squires’ self-described “First Story Ever” about his grandfather from an eighth- or ninth-grade class assignment. There are a few items from his service in the Tennessee National Guard and material from his later life includes correspondence and a series of political columns written for the Lexington Herald-Leader during the 2000 presidential campaign, other clippings and publications, speeches and photographs.

Series VI: Multimedia and oversize (1981-2003)

This 10-box series contains audiocassettes, videocassettes, floppy diskettes and oversize materials.

The first three boxes contain videocassettes in both VHS and Beta format, covering television program appearances in the early 1980s for the Chicago Tribune and television appearances for Read All About It!, The Secrets of the Hopewell Box and Horse of a Different Color. Also included are tapes from the Freedom Forum 75th Birthday Roast and Toast for Gannett Newspapers’ Allen Neuharth, the 2002 Tiffany Preparatory School graduation ceremony and the 2002 Florida Bankers’ Association annual meeting.

The fourth and fifth boxes of videocassettes contain television appearances and interviews related to the Ross Perot campaign and is restricted.

The sixth box contains audiocassettes from Squires’ editorship of the Tribune, cassettes of interviews and floppy diskettes from the Hopewell Box subseries, and the audio version of Horse of a Different Color read by Squires.

The seventh box is restricted and contains cassettes of interviews related to the Perot campaign and campaign music written and performed by supporters.

The last three boxes contain oversize material and include Watergate-era Chicago Tribune newspapers, maps, award plaques, photographs and original signed cartoons by Jeff MacNelly, Dick Locher and Ralph Dunagin.
