VANDERBILT  UNIVERSITY

YOUR WHO? WHAT? WHEN? WHERE? GUIDE

VUgraduation, #VU2012  VanderbiltCommencement

VANDERBILT  UNIVERSITY

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE CLASS OF 2012

Dear Almost Alumni,

It is hard to believe that almost four years have passed since you embarked on the unique path as the inaugural class to live and learn in The Commons. Through your enthusiastic engagement, you created and nurtured close friendships, set new paradigms for mentorships, and redefined the meaning of community at this great university.

Much has happened throughout these past few years. Carefully considering causes and issues that stirred your passion, you have demonstrated your values and defended principles of great importance. Your participation in Vanderbilt's community introduced possibilities that would have never existed without you, and I am pleased to have this opportunity to thank you for the meaningful ways in which you have contributed to our university family.

As you have discovered, the full potential of a Vanderbilt education is realized in relationships. Learning takes place in our interactions and how we choose to respond to humanity. Thanks to your Vanderbilt experience, you will view the world through a lens that values opportunity, challenge, and the perspectives of others.

I feel fortunate to have been a part of these special years in your life. Seeing you prepare for Commencement fills me with great hope for our world's future. As young alumni, you will continue to bring distinction to this university, and I look forward to celebrating the many ways that you will carry forward this sense of community to contribute to the betterment of our greater society.

Sincerely,

Nicholas S. Zeppos
Chancellor

SENIOR CLASS DAY

May 10, 2012

TOM BROKAW

The Voice of a Generation
May 10, 2012, 11 a.m.

The Nichols-Chancellor's Medal is one of the university's highest honors and is given to individuals who define the 21st century and exemplify the best qualities of the human spirit. It was created and endowed by Vanderbilt Law School graduate Edward C. Nichols Jr. and his wife, Janice, in honor of his parents, Edward Carmack Nichols and Lucile Hamby Nichols. The medal is presented annually at Vanderbilt's Senior Class Day and carries a cash prize. The 2012 Nichols-Chancellor's Medal award recipient and Senior Class Day speaker is Tom Brokaw.

A journalistic icon whose trusted insights change the way we think about the world, Tom Brokaw has traveled the globe to cover elections, summits, political turmoil, war, the climate crisis, and major news stories of every description.

Even after stepping aside from two decades at the helm of NBC Nightly News, Tom Brokaw is now more engaged than ever in finding stories that show the strength, perseverance, and courage of people not only here at home but around the globe. From the turmoil of the Vietnam War and the fall of the Berlin Wall to the war zones of Iraq and Afghanistan and the hallowed ground of Normandy where he interviewed President Obama during the anniversary commemoration of D-Day, Brokaw has the journalistic acumen and global experience to help us make sense of the complex stories of our times.

Brokaw enlightens audiences with his observations on the state of the U.S. and the world, providing unmatched analysis on the important political headlines, economic challenges, and social issues in the news and the people behind the headlines. Known and beloved for his landmark work in American journalism and his New York Times bestsellers which include Boom! and The Greatest Generation, Brokaw now turns his attention to the challenges that face America in the new millennium and offers reflections on how we can restore America's greatness in his new book, The Time of Our Lives: A Conversation About America.

Additional points to keep in mind:

Memorial Gym, where Senior Class Day will be held, is not air conditioned—wear comfortable clothes in the event of unusually warm weather.

Attendees with special needs and requiring the use of a wheelchair will have priority seating on the south side of the gym. Wheelchair pick-up will be located on the corner of Jess Neely Drive and 25th Avenue South (same corner as the baseball field and across from 25th Avenue Garage).

Holding seats is not permitted inside Memorial Gym as seating is limited.

FACULTY SEMINARS May 10, 2012

Why College? Education and Citizenship in Modern America

2:00–3:00 p.m., 103 Wilson Hall

College produces good citizens, right? Yes, but not for the reasons most people think. This talk will explore the role of higher education in defining changing meanings of democratic citizenship in the twentieth century, and explain why coordinated efforts to use education to produce good citizens and to remake society during that century rarely worked as intended. As we shall see, the real genius of American higher education has been—and remains—its utter unpredictability.

Christopher P. Loss is an assistant professor of education in Peabody College of Vanderbilt University. A historian of the twentieth-century United States, Loss specializes in the intellectual, political, and social history of U.S. higher education.

Creating Chaos in Haydn's The Creation

2:00–3:00 p.m., 126 Wilson Hall

In 1797, Joseph Haydn completed what was immediately hailed as his greatest work, The Creation. This enormous piece scored for solo singers, chorus, and orchestra opens with nothing short of a musical impossibility—the sound of infinite nothingness. What follows would seem another nonstarter, especially given the elegance, balance, and symmetry of late eighteenth-century musical style—the Representation of Chaos. This talk explores the aesthetics of the impossible in Haydn's most sublime work.

Melanie Lowe is associate professor of musicology and chair of the Department of Musicology and Ethnomusicology at Vanderbilt University's Blair School of Music. A scholar of eighteenth-century music, Lowe is also widely published on music in American media, classical recording, and “tween” pop culture.

Re-engineering Surgery: The Rise of Robots in the Operating Room

3:15–4:15 p.m., 103 Wilson Hall

Robots are becoming increasingly valuable surgical devices, enabling physicians to reach into the body less invasively and treat diseases more accurately than has ever before been possible. This talk will cover several examples of novel surgical robots, ranging from “tentacle-like” robots that are the diameter of needles for endonasal surgery, to swallowable endoscopic capsule robots that can accomplish surgery in the intestines, making the “fantastic voyage” foreseen by Isaac Asimov a reality.

Robert J. Webster III, assistant professor of mechanical engineering, has published more than sixty peer-reviewed papers in the areas of surgical robotics and medical device design, and is a recipient of the IEEE Volz award for Ph.D. thesis impact, and the National Science Foundation CAREER Award.

Privacy in America: Glimpses of a Modern History

3:15–4:15 p.m., 126 Wilson Hall

Privacy has become a flashpoint of contemporary American life. But it would be a mistake to treat “privacy” as an abstraction, unmoored by time, circumstance, and place. This talk investigates one of the key terms of U.S. political culture, charting the diverse ways privacy has emerged as a public concern across the twentieth century. Precisely because privacy has been billed as a personal possession, outside the domain of the state or politics, its history offers an illuminating window onto the social strains of modern citizenship.

Sarah E. Igo teaches and writes about modern American cultural and intellectual history. Her first book, The Averaged American, explores the relationship between survey data—opinion polls, sex surveys, consumer research—and modern understandings of self and nation. Igo also founded and co-directs the National Forum on the Future of Liberal Education.

Congratulations
CLASS OF 2012!

We have enjoyed being your voice here at Vandy.

Have a wonderful future!
